City Officials, Police Chief Stage Lengthy Quiz Parley

Circleville's law enforcement troubles were brought into the open for a general airing Friday night at a conference of city officials, but the meeting fell short of reaching definite conclusions.

Attending the meeting were Police Chief Williams F. McCrady, Mayor Thurman I. Miller, Service Director Joseph Rooney, Safety Director John Bolender and Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

Five members of city council were present in the capacity of committees they represent. They were Ralph Wallace, Ray Anderson, Robert Adkins, Boyd Horn and Dr. Edwin L. Montgomery. Council President Luther Bower acted as chairman of the conference.

For nearly two hours Chief McCrady stood before the meeting replying to questions in a colorful manner that several times had even the serious-minded councilmen rocking with laughter.

He insisted the major drawback to all the city's law enforcement ills was the lack of manpower on the police force.

Suggestions from solons regarding a more efficient distribution of men on the force, and even possible higher pay for the men now in uniform, failed to budge the chief from his stand on "too few policemen to do the job."

COUNCILMAN Montgomery asked why the "brawling situation in local beer dives" has not been cleared up or why have requests not been made to the state liquor board to close the establishments.

He suggested to the chief that a cross index file should be kept on all trouble spots and arrests made. In that way, he said, the police could build a case against the most troublesome drinking spots and offenders. McCrady replied that if "we

Israeli Chief Promises Ouster Of Arab Forces

TEL AVIV, Aug. 14—Israeli Premier David Ben Gurion warned today that Jewish forces would expel Arab armies from Palestine if the United Nations failed to act.

Other leaders of the new state charged Arab snipers had killed a Jewish soldier outside Jerusalem in an open breach of the holy city's new cease-fire order. The cease fire order was to have taken effect yesterday morning, UN Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte reported both Zionists and Arabs had signified their acceptance of it.

Ben Gurion's warning reinforced a similar threat made by Israeli foreign minister to the UN yesterday in a demand that the Security Council set an early time limit on the truce or risk an all-out renewal of war.

Soviet's Final Offer Seen

LONDON, Aug. 14 — British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin conferred with experts on Germany today amid reports that the Moscow negotiations are at their most critical point.

Diplomatic circles speculated that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has laid down Russia's final terms for a settlement of the Berlin crisis and indicated there will be no more bargaining.

Bevin, giving up his usual weekend in the country, conferred with the British military commander in Germany, Lt. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, who was summoned yesterday from Berlin. It was reported that they discussed Molotov's terms, which the West must now accept or reject.

U. S. Deputy Military Governor Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, and French Deputy Military Governor Maj. Gen. R. J. Noiret also arrived in London for three-power conferences which may result in decisions of the highest diplomatic importance.

THE EXACT status of the Moscow talks remains shrouded in secrecy, but speculation is that Russia is demanding complete control over Berlin currency, while the West is holding fast to its demand for equality. Meanwhile, the Western ambassadors in Moscow awaited new instructions, which will probably emerge from the present London conferences, before scheduling another meeting with Molotov.

CHARDON, Aug. 14—Chardon Chamber of Commerce members, each and every one, are expected to attend church services tomorrow—red faces and all.

The Chamber members were somewhat nonplussed at their monthly meeting when the Rev. George V. Gardner of Chardon Congregational church demanded to know why so many of them failed to attend services.

Rev. Mr. Gardner asked how many had attended church the previous Sunday and approximately five hands went up.

Members blamed the frigid church atmosphere, general Sabbath tiredness and the presence of too many hypocrites for their absence.

200 Youngsters On Tap For Playground Finale

Nearly 200 Circleville youngsters turned out Friday to help wind up the Ted Lewis Park playground program, sponsored this Summer by Kiwanis Club.

The day was filled with continuous activities, including bicycle races, a treasure hunt, softball game, volleyball contest, sidewalk tennis and awarding of prizes for the Summer's outstanding records and accomplishments.

Ted Mogan copped the boys' bicycle racing championship, defeating Tommy Phillips and Ray Carpenter in the finals, while Helen Mogan, his sister, claimed the title in the girls' division.

Dick Rhoads and Bob Turner proved to be the final sidewalk tennis doubles champions of the year, claiming the title by defeating Jerry Rooney and Roger Bennington. Rooney was the sidewalk tennis singles champion of the park for the year.

Peron Readies Plan To Retain Permanent Seat

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 14—A surprise parliamentary move paved the way today for perpetuation of President Juan D. Peron's strong man rule over Argentina.

Taking advantage of the recent mass withdrawal of opposition deputies from the chamber, Peron's supporters introduced a bill calling for election within six months of a special constituent assembly to amend the constitution.

Under the present constitution, Peron will not be able to run in 1952 to succeed himself.

Passage of the bill is certain. The Peronistas have 104 deputies in the chamber to the 41 deputies of the Radical Party. In addition, the latter, although still attending sessions, has announced resignation en masse.

Introduction of the measure came after the chamber voted that Peron may exercise unlimited authority when he believes a national emergency exists.

Soviets Tell Their Story

Tass Reports Teacher 'Kidnaped'

MOSCOW, Aug. 14—The Soviet news agency Tass charged today that "U. S. intelligence agents" have kidnapped Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina and that New York police are issuing false statements in her name.

The first Russian comment on the 52-year-old teacher's leap Thursday from the third floor window of the Soviet consulate termed it "an accident."

The dispatch, published in Pravda, declared that "intelligence agents," disguised as ordinary policemen, broke into the Soviet consulate and forcibly carried off the injured woman to a hospital.

It added that the New York police and the American Secret Service, backed by the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, is continuing "wayward actions" against Soviet consular authorities.

The Tass dispatch, datelined New York, did not specify what statements the New York police made in Mrs. Kosenkina's name.

(Mrs. Kosenkina yesterday was reported by the police to have told Soviet Vice-Consul Zot I. Chepurnykh:

"YOU KEPT me as a prisoner. You would not let me go.") But the dispatch anticipated (Continued on Page Two)

Georgia Killer Escapes Guard

CINCINNATI, Aug. 14—A 33-year-old Georgia murderer was on the loose again today after knocking down his guard and escaping in Cincinnati's railroad depot.

Leroy Harris, alias, Thomas Rose, was being returned to the South by Patrolman T. T. Wright of Jackson County, Ga., in a private drawing room compartment when he made his break.

The guard had removed the handcuffs upon Harris' request to use the rest room when suddenly the prisoner leaped, caught an upper bunk and drove both feet into Wright's chest. Before the dazed guard could draw his gun the prisoner fled into the station.

Woman Now Is Ward Of America

Mrs. Kosenkina Under Big Guard

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—A double mantle of security was thrown around Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina today when she was served with a congressional subpoena, making her a technical ward of the United States government.

The 52-year-old Russian school teacher, under heavy police guard in Roosevelt hospital, accepted a notice to appear before the House Un-American Activities Committee as soon as she is able.

The document was given to her by the committee's chief investigator, Robert Stripling, who explained that while she is under call to appear before the House group she is accorded full protection of the federal government.

Stripling said that Mrs. Kosenkina told him she has no objections to testifying as soon as she recovers from the serious injuries she sustained in leaping to freedom from the Soviet consulate Thursday afternoon.

HER DOCTOR said yesterday it may be three months before she can leave the hospital.

New York Police, meanwhile, were reported to have a statement that Russia's ambassador to Washington visited the New York consulate and tried to obtain an affidavit from Mrs. Kosenkina that she was not kept there by force.

The envoy, Alexander S. Panyushkin, was reported unsuccessful in his mission.

Mrs. Kosenkina told police of Panyushkin's visit in a bedside interview during which she revealed she had been detained against her will, it was reported. In Washington Panyushkin went into conference with Un-

Rubber's Bounce Still Mystery

AKRON, Aug. 14—The answer to the 200-year-old question, "what makes rubber bounce?" may be forthcoming shortly through atomic energy research.

Dr. Howard E. Fritz, vice-president in charge of research at the B. F. Goodrich Co., said that researchers "still are unable to explain scientifically what puts the bounce in rubber."

He added that, among other projects, radioactive tracers, also known as "tagged atoms," will be used in unravelling the reaction occurring in vulcanization.

more strict traffic enforcement in Circleville drew a stock reply from the chief—"not enough men to patrol the streets."

Councilmen Adkins asked the chief why civil service examinations were not given for extra policemen so they could stand ready to fill any vacancies on the regular staff or replace unsatisfactory men.

The chief declared he couldn't find men who would want the job even at $182.50 per month pay.

As it is, the chief said, he does not have enough money to pay overtime for his men who already are working.

McCRADY recalled that once when a civil service exam was given a local man, whom he did not identify, passed the test. The man immediately bought a uniform, cap and gun, McCrady said. He added:

"Then he walks up the street and a motorist drives nearby, on the wrong side of the street and asks when the next bus leaves. The 'policeman' yells at the driver that he's on the wrong side of the street. The driver says he knows that but he wants to know when the next bus leaves. The 'policeman' runs into the hotel, grabs a poker and bangs the motorist over the head."

Speaking on hog pens and burning chicken feathers and refuse within the city limits, Montgomery declared "Circleville has been fortunate to escape infantile paralysis."

He said it was pretty well accepted by the medical profession that flies contribute to polio and that hog pens and refuse areas draw the insects. He attributed the lack of large numbers of flies to DDT and insecticides in helping with fly control.

The chief of police was urged to organize school patrols to assist with the traffic problem, but McCrady said it had been tried but did not work out.

In the closing minutes of the meeting, McCrady invited any of the councilmen to spend a week in the chief's job to get a better understanding of his problems.

There were no takers.

Firms Submit Bids On Water Plant Projects

Six firms have submitted bids on two improvement projects to be undertaken at the Circleville water pump station.

For installation of a heating system, bids were received from Roy Huffer, Bob Litter Fuel and Heating and Harpster and Yost Hardware, all Circleville firms, and the Home Furnace Co. of Columbus.

Two bids were submitted for construction of a 400-foot extension to the present infiltration gallery at the pump station.

Irvin Leist, water department manager, said they were from C. F. Replogle of Circleville and the Christopher Construction Co. of Columbus.

The heating system became necessary with the elimination of steam pumps at the water station, Leist said. The area to be heated will be the pump room and the chlorination section of the station.

EXTENSION of the infiltration gallery will increase the city's water supply by one million gallons daily, or double the present reserve.

Leist said the new master meter used for recording the amount of water and sustained pressure now is in operation along with the 24-hour disc recorder.

He said his department also plans to make a test run Monday on the new electric pump recently installed. The five- and one-half ton, $4,200 machine replaces all steam equipment, Leist declared.

The oldest halibut fishery in the United States, that of the North Atlantic banks, is said by the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior, to have declined from a former catch of around 14,000,000 pounds to about 1,000,000 pounds annually.

50 Guardsmen Set To Leave For Atterbury

Nearly 50 Pickaway County men of Company 1, 166th Infantry, National Guard, are to enter for Camp Atterbury, Ind., Sunday afternoon for a 15-day training period.

Capt. Jack Clifton local unit commander, said Saturday his advanced detail had reached the camp and was setting up living quarters for the unit.

The local guard company to be one of 165 similar units from throughout Ohio which will attend the session.

Monday the local trainees are to undergo a rigid and intensive training in the latest hand-to-hand fighting methods and will fire the rifle and carbine on the camp range.

FIGHTING methods to be learned at Atterbury will combine the best knowledge gained during the recent war with the latest discoveries of the postwar period.

Prior to World War II, the O.N.G. trained at Camp Perry, but this is out now because the Ohio site is judged too small to handle the needs of the greatly expanded division.

Official Washington insisted on the latest training devices and the larger camp site because, more than ever before, the National Guard is among the country's first defensive units.

The guardsmen would be among the first to go in event of a national emergency. And in view of the delicate foreign situation, well, "huff said."

475 Pheasants, 15 Coon To Be Released Here

A total 475 pheasants and 15 raccoons are to be released throughout Pickaway County next week by Game Warden Clarence Francis.

According to Francis, hunting should be "much better" in the county this year, as compared to the poor season local nimrods found last year.

Francis said Saturday he expected the number of rabbits and pheasants to be found in greater abundance this Fall. He said he would try to substantiate that fact when he takes his yearly "game count."

The "game count" is to be completed by the local conservationists before Aug. 20, and the estimated number sent in to the state conservation office.

"There," said Francis, "they will take the totals counted by other Ohio game men and formulate the bag limits and open seasons for the various game animals."

According to Francis, announcements of the open seasons will be made during the early part of September.

First of the game animals to go on the "open season" list are squirrels, which are to be hunted starting Sept. 15. Bag limit is set at four per day and four in possession.

USS Wyoming Claims Studied

Any survivor of a veteran who was killed or injured in the sinking of the USS Wyoming off the coast of California in 1937 should contact James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer.

Shea said the Veterans Administration is to review deaths and injuries from the sinking and award claims comparable to the claims paid veterans of World War II.

The review board has revised the claims awards, and the sinking of the ship with its resulting deaths and injuries during its practice maneuvers has been termed as an "extra hazardous service."

ASKED WHETHER the subpoena would place Mrs. Kosenkina in physical custody of the committee, Stripling said: "That will have to be worked out later."

Stripling made the same reply when asked whether the Russian woman would be questioned at the hospital by the committee.

As implications of the case spread to every major capital of the world, Mrs. Kosenkina's statement, repudiating the Russian claim that she was a willing guest of the consulate, was sent to the FBI, the State department and the House committee.

The case erupted last week when the Russian consul held a news conference at which he told of attempts to "kidnap" Mrs. Kosenkina and prevent her from returning to Russia.

Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Kosenkina leaped from a third-floor window of the consulate and later announced she had been "kept prisoner" by the consul general.

Meanwhile, Rep. Mundt, (R) S. D., acting House UnAmerican Activities Committee chairman, predicted the recall of Joseph Lomakin, Soviet consul in New York.

Mundt said Lomakin would be recalled first because his actions had made an unfavorable impression on the people of this country, and second because from a Russian viewpoint he had mishandled the Kosenkina affair, Mundt said:

"If he's lucky, he will go to the salt mines. If he's unlucky, something worse will happen."

Second Try At Marriage Said Failure

Once divorced from her husband, Marie Ladley has filed separation papers for the second time against Edward L. Ladley who is accused of gross neglect of duty.

Her document, now on file in Pickaway County common pleas court, says Ladley is sullen, insulting to visitors and relatives and that he mistreats the daughter.

Furthermore, the petition claims Ladley has borrowed money without his wife's consent forcing her to sell the family automobile to liquidate debts.

more strict traffic enforcement in Circleville drew a stock reply from the chief—"not enough men to patrol the streets."

Councilmen Adkins asked the chief why civil service examinations were not given for extra policemen so they could stand ready to fill any vacancies on the regular staff or replace unsatisfactory men.

The chief declared he couldn't find men who would want the job even at $182.50 per month pay.

As it is, the chief said, he does not have enough money to pay overtime for his men who already are working.

McCRADY recalled that once when a civil service exam was given a local man, whom he did not identify, passed the test. The man immediately bought a uniform, cap and gun, McCrady said. He added:

"Then he walks up the street and a motorist drives nearby, on the wrong side of the street and asks when the next bus leaves. The 'policeman' yells at the driver that he's on the wrong side of the street. The driver says he knows that but he wants to know when the next bus leaves. The 'policeman' runs into the hotel, grabs a poker and bangs the motorist over the head."

Speaking on hog pens and burning chicken feathers and refuse within the city limits, Montgomery declared "Circleville has been fortunate to escape infantile paralysis."

He said it was pretty well accepted by the medical profession that flies contribute to polio and that hog pens and refuse areas draw the insects. He attributed the lack of large numbers of flies to DDT and insecticides in helping with fly control.

The chief of police was urged to organize school patrols to assist with the traffic problem, but McCrady said it had been tried but did not work out.

In the closing minutes of the meeting, McCrady invited any of the councilmen to spend a week in the chief's job to get a better understanding of his problems.

There were no takers.

Firms Submit Bids On Water Plant Projects

Six firms have submitted bids on two improvement projects to be undertaken at the Circleville water pump station.

For installation of a heating system, bids were received from Roy Huffer, Bob Litter Fuel and Heating and Harpster and Yost Hardware, all Circleville firms, and the Home Furnace Co. of Columbus.

Two bids were submitted for construction of a 400-foot extension to the present infiltration gallery at the pump station.

Irvin Leist, water department manager, said they were from C. F. Replogle of Circleville and the Christopher Construction Co. of Columbus.

The heating system became necessary with the elimination of steam pumps at the water station, Leist said. The area to be heated will be the pump room and the chlorination section of the station.

EXTENSION of the infiltration gallery will increase the city's water supply by one million gallons daily, or double the present reserve.

Leist said the new master meter used for recording the amount of water and sustained pressure now is in operation along with the 24-hour disc recorder.

He said his department also plans to make a test run Monday on the new electric pump recently installed. The five- and one-half ton, $4,200 machine replaces all steam equipment, Leist declared.

1. Peace is always in God; God is Peace.
2. Only men who bow their heads before God are capable of giving the world a true, just and lasting peace.
3. Unite, all honest people, to bring closer the victory of human brotherhood and with it the recovery of the world.
4. Banish lies and rancor and in their stead let truth and charity reign supreme.
5. Affirm human dignity and the orderliness of liberty in living.
6. Give generously of aid and relief—State to State, people to people, above and beyond all national boundaries.
7. Assure the right of life and independence to all nations, large and small, powerful and weak.
8. Work together toward a profound reintegration of that supreme justice which reposes in the dominion of God and is preserved from every caprice.
9. The Church established by God as the rock of human brotherhood and peace can never come to terms with the idol-worshippers of brutal violence.
10. Be prepared to make sacrifices to achieve peace.

had filed suit to oust the Rev. Orland Powell as pastor of the Full Gospel Temple. They charged he "failed to preach and teach religion of the Assemblies of God."

When the case was called, Judge Don Thomas told the contestants to hold a prayer meeting in his courtroom and then he retired to his office. Two hours later he heard the familiar hymn.

The factions had called off their battle and the pastor retained his pulpit.

Holland Assembly Seen Airing Many Problems

A delegation of more than 500 men, women and youthful leaders of Protestant and Orthodox denominations in the United States will be present when the 14-day session of the first Assembly of the World Council of Churches convenes in Amsterdam's Concertgebouw (Concert-hall) Aug. 22, to give permanence to the provisional World Council of Churches and issue pronouncements concerning Christian approach to world peace and the political and economic ills that afflict mankind.

The American delegation includes Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, bishop of the Methodist Church (New York area); the Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, and John Foster Dulles, Presbyterian layman.

Seventy-five delegates are the official representatives of United States' 29 denominations, embracing more than 30,000,000 members of the Protestant and Orthodox churches. More than 100 men and women were aboard when the Queen Elizabeth sailed from New York Aug. 6, and other delegates sailed on the Nieuw Amsterdam Aug. 13. Others will fly across the Atlantic.

As the clerical and lay delegates from 150 denominations and every continent on the globe gather for the first plenary session in Amsterdam, church bells in the United States and other countries, will carry the tidings to millions of Christians and in many churches special prayers will be said for the success of the greatest effort in modern times to achieve a rebirth of Christian faith.

"Man's Disorder And God's Design" is the theme of the assembly and many political economic and other troubles of a disordered world as well as questions of theology and the future organization of the World Council are on the agenda of the Amsterdam meeting.

The assembly first was announced for 1941 but was delayed by World War II. The first assembly meets ten years after the provisional organization was formed at the Utrecht conference. During the interim four study commissions on various phases of the Assembly's theme have been at work. More than 500 theologians from all over the world have participated in the preparation of book length reports.

One of these commissions, the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs—formed jointly with the International Missionary Council—will hold its own meeting at Woudschoten, Holland, Aug. 17-18 preliminary to the assembly, and will put into final form the report it will present to the Amsterdam conference.

Dulles, famous American international lawyer who took a leading part in the effort to establish a world organization based on Christian principles, will present the viewpoint of western democracies at Amsterdam on Aug. 24. Dr. Joseph L. Hromadka of Soviet-dominated Czechoslovakia will be the other speaker on "The Church and International Affairs." Hromadka is a professor of the University of Prague and a delegate of the Church of Czechoslovakian Brethren.

Other study commissions dealt with "The Universal Church in God's Design" (the nature of the church); "God's Design and Man's Witness" (evangelism) and "The Church and the Disorder of Society." Five provisional presidents of the World Council, including an American, Dr. John R. Mott, will alternate in presiding at plenary sessions. Except during the discussion of study questions when Dr. H. P. Van Dusen will preside. The delegates will be divided into four study sections and four assembly committees. Each will hold separate meetings during the first five days of the assembly, and at subsequent plenary sessions each study section and committee will have a full day for consideration and debate of their proposals.

The four committees will be: (1) constitution for the World Council; (2) future policy; (3) administration; (4) concerns of the churches—(a) Christian attitude to the Jews (b) the place of women in the church (c) lay training and (d) reconstruction and inter-church aid.

Both women and youth are demanding an increasing voice in the policy making level of church leadership.

Fifty women church leaders including Mrs. Douglas McAfee Horton, president of Wellesley college; Mrs. Samuel McCrea Cavert, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women, will hold their own conference at Baarn, Holland, and will present a report for consideration of the Amsterdam assembly on "The Place of Women in the Church." They are expected to maintain that "a household that doesn't include in its management women is no real household."

More than 100 youthful Christian leaders including 20 from the United States will be at Amsterdam, holding their own sessions simultaneous with the World Council of Churches to consider an agenda duplicating that of the "older generation." Youth will be heard at the plenary session by its own spokesman and will sit in as observers at the plenary session.

Judge Grover's order prohibits only the "release time" type of classes which touched off a prolonged series of suits and eventually the supreme court decision. The suits were brought by Mrs. Vashti McCollum, wife of a University of Illinois faculty member.

In handing down the order, Judge Watson rejected the recommendations of Walter F. Dadds, Chicago, attorney for Mrs. McCollum. Dadds recommended a broad interpretation of the supreme court decision. He asked that the writ prohibit use of the school at any time by religious organizations.

Mrs. McCollum asserted that she was displeased with the court order, and was willing to carry the case back to the supreme court, if necessary.

There are about 250,000 churches in the United States claiming close to half the country's population as members.

Following the Sunday morning services pictures of the junior choir members in their new vestments will be taken.

Excerpt from Teachings of the BAHAI FAITH
"The Baha'i, recognizing that the Founders of all the world's religions are from the same God, realizes that he cannot accept one without accepting them all. Likewise he cannot deny one without denying them all. The original message is always the same and is always in accord with scientific truth."

The Man Who Brought Others

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 4:18; Mark 1:16-21, 29; 3:18; 13:3-7; Luke 6:14; John 1:37-43; 6:8-9; 12:20-22; Acts 1:12-14.

When John the Baptist pointed out Jesus to Andrew, he followed Him home, and was convinced He was the Messiah. Andrew sought Peter, his brother, and brought him to Jesus.

After calling Simon and Andrew to follow Him, Jesus taught in the synagogue, and then went to the home of Simon and Andrew, and James and John went with them.

Seated on the Mount of Olives, Simon, Peter, James, John and Andrew questioned the Master as to when the kingdom of heaven would come and what would be the signs thereof.

After the Resurrection, after Jesus had been taken up to heaven, His disciples, the women and Mary, His mother, met for prayer and supplication. MEMORY VERSE—Mark 5:19.

Courtroom Hymn Sing Ends Tiff In Congregation

DAYTON, Aug. 14—A rift between a Dayton pastor and part of his congregation, which reached the proportions of a court fight, was ended today by a hymn sung in a Montgomery County courtroom.

The warring factions ended a two-hour meeting in the room by singing "Nearer My God To Thee" to end their three-month dispute.

'Lights Of Hope' To Be Topic At Vesper Service

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church will bring the sermon at the union vesper service in the Ted Lewis Park shelter house, at 8 p. m. Sunday. These union services are sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Rev. Mr. Wilson will use the topic "Lights Of Hope!" basing his remarks on the Scripture found in St. John 12:46.

Preceding the union service, Circleville Community Band will offer a half hour program of music. The band will also accompany the congregation as they sing, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," "Blessed Assurance!" and "My Faith Looks Up To Thee!"

Vacationing Minister Returns

The Rev. Elisha Kneisley will return to the pulpit of Circleville First Methodist church Sunday morning following a month's vacation in the West.

He will speak on the subject "A Good Heritage." The pastor expects to weave a few personal experiences of his vacation through the West into the theme of his sermon for the 10:30 a. m. worship service.

Mrs. Ervin Leist, organist, will play "Sunset" by Ashford, and "Postlude Triumphant" by Martin. The quartet will sing the anthem, "Let The Words Of My Mouth" by Pears. Members of the quartet are Mrs. Lawrence Graham, soprano, Mrs. Harold S. Defenbaugh, alto, Glenn Barnhart, tenor, and Robert Sproule, bass.

For her solo, Mrs. Graham will sing "Praise God For Life Made New" by Ward Stephens. Sunday program of the church will open at 9:15 a. m. with church school and religious education, with W. Earl Hilyard as general superintendent. Each division of the school will have its devotional program, and then adjourn to different classes for Bible study.

Native Bishops To Lead Rites In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14—Four bishops who began their priesthoods in the Catholic diocese of Cleveland will take part in the consecration of the new St. John's cathedral Sept. 6 along with Cleveland Bishop Edward F. Hoban.

Bishop Hoban will consecrate the main altar. Bishop James A. MacFadden of Youngstown, Coadjutor Bishop John P. Treacy of LaCrosse, Wisc., Coadjutor Bishop John F. Dearden and Auxiliary Bishop Floyd L. Begin will consecrate four chapels in the edifice.

Seven members of the Catholic hierarchy, including a cardinal, all of whom begin their priestly lives in Cleveland, will join in the eight-day observation of the diocese centennial and the consecration of the cathedral.

had filed suit to oust the Rev. Orland Powell as pastor of the Full Gospel Temple. They charged he "failed to preach and teach religion of the Assemblies of God."

When the case was called, Judge Don Thomas told the contestants to hold a prayer meeting in his courtroom and then he retired to his office. Two hours later he heard the familiar hymn.

The factions had called off their battle and the pastor retained his pulpit.

Holland Assembly Seen Airing Many Problems

A delegation of more than 500 men, women and youthful leaders of Protestant and Orthodox denominations in the United States will be present when the 14-day session of the first Assembly of the World Council of Churches convenes in Amsterdam's Concertgebouw (Concert hall) Aug. 22, to give permanence to the provisional World Council of Churches and issue pronouncements concerning the Christian approach to world peace and the political and economic ills that afflict mankind.

The American delegation includes Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, bishop of the Methodist Church (New York area); the Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, and John Foster Dulles, Presbyterian layman.

Seventy-five delegates are the official representatives of United States' 29 denominations, embracing more than 30,000,000 members of the Protestant and Orthodox churches. More than 100 men and women were aboard when the Queen Elizabeth sailed from New York Aug. 6, and other delegates sailed on the Nieuw Amsterdam Aug. 13. Others will fly across the Atlantic.

As the clerical and lay delegates from 150 denominations and every continent on the globe gather for the first plenary session in Amsterdam, church bells in the United States and other countries, will carry the tidings to millions of Christians and in many churches special prayers will be said for the success of the greatest effort in modern times to achieve a rebirth of Christian faith.

"Man's Disorder And God's Design" is the theme of the assembly and many political economic and other troubles of a disordered world as well as questions of theology and the future organization of the World Council are on the agenda of the Amsterdam meeting.

The assembly first was announced for 1941 but was delayed by World War II. The first assembly meets ten years after the provisional organization was formed at the Utrecht conference. During the interim four study commissions on various phases of the Assembly's theme have been at work. More than 500 theologians from all over the world have participated in the preparation of book length reports.

One of these commissions, the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs—formed jointly with the International Missionary Council—will hold its own meeting at Woudschoten, Holland, Aug. 17-18 preliminary to the assembly, and will put into final form the report it will present to the Amsterdam conference.

Dulles, famous American International lawyer who took a leading part in the effort to establish a world organization based on Christian principles, will present the viewpoint of western democracies at Amsterdam on Aug. 24. Dr. Joseph L. Hromadka of Soviet-dominated Czechoslovakia will be the other speaker on "The Church and International Affairs." Hromadka is a professor of the University of Prague and a delegate of the Church of Czechoslovakian Brethren.

Other study commissions dealt with "The Universal Church in God's Design" (the nature of the church); "God's Design and Man's Witness" (evangelism) and "The Church and the Disorder of Society." Five provisional presidents of the World Council, including an American, Dr. John R. Mott, will alternate in presiding at plenary sessions. Except during the discussion of study questions when Dr. H. P. Van Dusen will preside. The delegates will be divided into four study sections and four assembly committees. Each will hold separate meetings during the first five days of the assembly, and at subsequent plenary sessions each study section and committee will have a full day for consideration and debate of their proposals.

The four committees will be: (1) constitution for the World Council; (2) future policy; (3) administration; (4) concerns of the churches—(a) Christian attitude to the Jews (b) the place of women in the church (c) lay training and (d) reconstruction and inter-church aid.

Both women and youth are demanding an increasing voice in the policy making level of church leadership.

Fifty women church leaders including Mrs. Douglas McAfee Horton, president of Wellesley college; Mrs. Samuel McCrea Cavert, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women, will hold their own conference at Baarn, Holland, and will present a report for consideration of the Amsterdam assembly on "The Place of Women in the Church." They are expected to maintain that "a household that doesn't include in its management women is no real household."

More than 100 youthful Christian leaders including 20 from the United States will be at Amsterdam, holding their own sessions simultaneous with the World Council of Churches to consider an agenda duplicating that of the "older generation." Youth will be heard at the plenary session by its own spokesman and will sit in as observers at the plenary session.

Third Request Sermon To Be Given Sunday

Third sermon in the series of request topics will be delivered Sunday morning in Trinity Lutheran church from the theme "Daniel—The man who lives forever because he said no."

The Rev. G. L. Troutman will develop the theme from the text, Daniel 1:18.

Junior vested choir under the leadership of Mrs. G. L. Troutman will sing the anthem, "My Jesus I Love Thee." Miss Mary Kathryn Morgan will sing "Oh Savior Hear Me."

Following the Sunday morning services pictures of the junior choir members in their new vestments will be taken.

The Man Who Brought Others

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 4:18; Mark 1:16-21, 29; 3:18; 13:3-7; Luke 6:14; John 1:37-43; 6:8-9; 12:20-22; Acts 1:12-14.

When John the Baptist pointed out Jesus to Andrew, he followed Him home, and was convinced He was the Messiah. Andrew sought Peter, his brother, and brought him to Jesus.

After calling Simon and Andrew to follow Him, Jesus taught in the synagogue and then went to the home of Simon and Andrew, and James and John went with them.

Seated on the Mount of Olives, Simon, Peter, James, John and Andrew questioned the Master as to when the kingdom of heaven would come and what would be the signs thereof.

After the Resurrection, after Jesus had been taken up to heaven, His disciples, the women and Mary, His mother, met for prayer and supplication.

MOURNING THE DRAFT

THE APPEAL for observance of a day of "mourning and repentance" for the peace-time draft is signed by a group of eminent clergymen whose sincerity and high purpose are beyond question. Repentance is indeed appropriate; mourning would seem so only for those who believe that Peace is dead.

But mourning, repentance and protest will do little to correct the conditions which have forced this country to turn again to military conscription.

When a threat to the peace of the world has appeared it is too late to discuss the morality of arming to meet it. The argument that by arming itself the United States contributes to the possibilities of war cannot be supported by history, for this country did not enter either world war in a state which by the greatest stretch of the imagination could be called preparedness.

The church does far more in the service of the country, in the cause of peace and in its fight against conscription, by seeking out the sources of war—lack of understanding, distrust and blind self-interest among the nations—and diligently making what contribution it can to the elimination of those evils.

GOOD BUSINESS

PART of the credit for the large export-import business of Chicago should go to the up-and-coming world trade department of its Association of Commerce and Industry.

Correspondence amounting to a thousand letters a month from a hundred countries flows into this department. A large proportion is carried on in English, but a staff of foreign language experts is maintained to translate the rest. The amount of cash and merchandise involved in these transactions runs into millions.

Reptile skins, leopard skins, carved chests, textile machinery and chemicals, resins, shellacs, and various oils are a few of the commodities changing hands in deals which are sponsored by the Association.

Any organization which encourages the free flow of trade between countries is engaged in a constructive enterprise. It seems to be simpler, however, to come to an agreement over the exchange of goods and money to the profit of all concerned than it is to agree on the political maneuvers necessary for the achievement of peace. The practical minds which take care of the former are seldom brought to bear on the latter.

Up to another fine morning and in the yard did stand astounded before a Crimson Glory rose planted last Spring. Blooming for the third time this Summer. Counted 17 buds in various stages of advancement and in the house had noted a half dozen gorgeous flowers taken from the same plant. Made a mental note to order more plants of the same variety for production next year.

Down town did run into George Fitzpatrick and an argument, but he must have realized he was wrong, as usual for he bought my coffee. Chatted with Earl Smith who is leaving Sunday for the Canadian fishing waters along with Doc Goldschmidt, Harold Hott, Wallace Crist and Ade Yates.

Noted that the Ralston Purina plant now has operated 711 days without a loss-time accident. Was present at the Safety meeting of the plant about a year ago when officials from St. Louis lauded the workers for going a year without serious mishap. And the locals promised to make it two years straight. Can't be

Came a communication from General Electric relative to business in 1948 and a statement that the company is well on toward a new record. Sold $773 million worth of products in six months. Prices averaged only 35 percent above 1940 while employees wages rose 75 percent and cost of materials purchased mounted close to double those of 1940. G. E. made a net profit of about seven cents out of each dollar taken in. And it paid the government $45 million in taxes. That $45 million might have constructed a lot of new factories, but instead it bought whatever it is that Washington buys with our tax dollars. We get something out of the dollars industry spends.

Bill Defenbaugh was in with a fine letter from his wife expressing appreciation for support of the 4-H Foundation Fund benefit square dance staged by the three Salt Creek clubs. Thankful to everyone. The dance permitted payment of $120 of the $212 Foundation goal set by the Salt Creek aggregation. And its success prompted plans for a repeat September 4 at the Fairgrounds. If the financial goal is passed the excess will be turned over to other 4-H clubs seeking to raise their allotments. The scrivener hopes that following the Salt Creek dance that other 4-H clubs will continue the dance series. They are good clean entertainment and could easily become a county institution. The Herald will continue supporting them gratis.

Here and there a little more talk along political lines. But so far have found none declaring intent to vote for anything or anyone. Everyone expects to vote against. And that is not a new idea. Generally the man in office is certain he is there because a majority of the voters wanted him personally. He is and has been there not so much because of the votes cast for him as because of the votes cast against his opponent.

These Days

During the whole period of the New Deal small business has been encouraged to believe that it has had the support of the Administration vis-a-vis big business. Whenever the opportunity offered, big business was slapped down in public, but there is no evidence that it was ever lessened in its power to compete with small business or even to absorb it. Actually the facts would substantiate the postulate that that branch of the New Deal which was socialistic favored the biggest businesses as concentrations which could, at the right time, be taken over most readily.

This is not a discussion of the relative merits of big or small business nor of the virtues of government policy that favors one position or another. It is a simple statement of fact that both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations have given the public to believe that they favored small business in preference to big.

Now comes the Federal Trade Commission, supported by the Supreme Court of the United States, and hits down some small businesses to the advantage of big business in the matter of the basing point. Maybe the supreme court had to decide this matter as it did, although Justice Burton thought otherwise, but it had been the Federal Trade Commission that labored for years to abolish the basing point and which gained its point.

So, it works out more favorably for the large companies that have more than one plant than for the small businesses that are limited to one plant. In a word, the Federal Trade Commission's efforts are anti-small business while intending perhaps to be anti-big business. They seek to increase competition, but does it?

I know of a firm situated in upper New York State which operates only one plant. It used to buy its steel in Buffalo at a price that included the cost of transportation from anywhere. Now it is required to buy steel in Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit plus the cost of transportation. Its price is becoming non-competitive, that is, their cost of steel plus transportation is higher than that of companies making the same product in Pennsylvania.

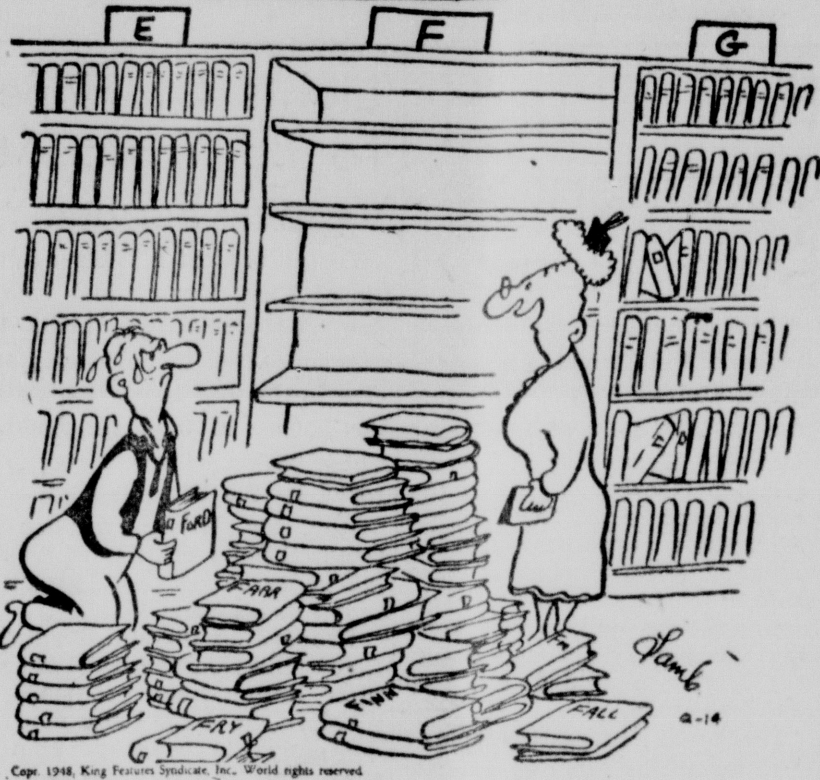

Another company, important in the war effort, has been planning to decentralize for reasons of security. It planned to put plants in Texas and Missouri. Because of the FTC decisions with regard to the basing point, the products of this company out of the Texas and Missouri plants would be non-competitive with its principal competitor, who has a plant in Chicago. Here the decision conflicts with the obvious need for decentralization on account of a prospective war.

How this helps small business or keeps prices down, it is difficult to see unless by small business the FTC means the incompetent, the inefficient, those needing subsidies or the presently non-existent businesses that will be brought into being on a fly-by-night basis to take advantage of a government-promoted confusion.

Two men were arrested in New York for fighting in an airplane. We've heard of people hitting the ceiling in a quarrel; they must have gone through it.

The New Drug Discoveries

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN medicine, as elsewhere, we have to take the good with the bad. Of recent years, chemical research has given us a number of new drugs whose life-saving qualities have been heralded everywhere, and rightly so, because they have proved invaluable. There are others, too, almost equally important in that they relieve distressing symptoms which can be controlled in no other way.

And yet, for all their potency against disease, there is not one of these drugs but which can cause dangerous reactions. This is one of the reasons why I have always stressed the importance of using them only under a physician's direction. Knowing what hazards are possible, he also knows how to spot them in their early stages and can thus stop the use of the drug in question before dangerous symptoms develop.

Caused by Penicillin
Reactions may be caused by penicillin, streptomycin, and the sulfonamide drugs, all of which are used for infections; benadryl used in cases of allergy or sensitivity; thiouracil, employed in the treatment of goiter, and tridione used to treat certain types of epilepsy. In the case of penicillin, reactions may include skin rash, hives, chills, fever, and vomiting. There may also be depression or excitation or convulsions, and the presence of blood in the urine. Reactions to penicillin sometimes may be decreased by giving benadryl or pyridoxamine.

In the case of streptomycin, ringing in the ears and dizziness may appear early in its use. After several weeks of treatment, the sense of balance controlled by the inner ear may be disturbed. If a skin rash occurs with streptomycin, it quickly disappears when the drug is stopped. The sulfonamide drugs can cause severe anemia, that is, lessening of the red cells or coloring of the blood, as well as a decrease in the number of white cells. Neuritis of the eye nerve or of other nerves may develop. There may be certain mental disturbances. Kidney damage is not unusual.

With benadryl, many patients experience drowsiness, nervousness, sickness at the stomach, and other unpleasant effects.

The most serious effect of thiouracil is a decrease in the white cells of the blood. This is a dangerous condition and every effort must be made to prevent it. Headache and diarrhea are other symptoms which may develop. For this reason, when thiouracil is used, examinations of the blood should be made weekly or oftener. A newer preparation of the same type, known as propyl-thiouracil, seems to be less likely to cause reactions. Tridione, also, may damage the blood-forming tissues.

When any of these various preparations are employed, the doctor must be ever-watchful to prevent and to control the so-called side-effects of these valuable drugs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L.: Can an inflamed colon be discovered without X-ray?

Answer: Inflammation of the colon can be diagnosed without an X-ray examination.

Examination may be made with the proctoscope, an instrument made up of a tube and light which is passed into the lower bowel. It is very useful in diagnosing disorders of the large intestine.

Symptoms of bowel inflammation are quite distinct, such as pain in the abdomen and the passage of bowel movement containing blood and mucus.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

BEATRICE paused for breath. Rowley said nothing, just listened. He never hurried people. If they liked to take their time it suited him.

She continued with dignity: "It was just a little later I had occasion to go up to No. 4 to see to the towels and the bed linen. That's next door to No. 5, and as it happens there's a communicating door—not that you'd know it from No. 5 because the big wardrobe there stands right across it, so that you wouldn't know there was a door. Of course it's always kept shut but as it happened this time it was just a bit open—though you opened it I've no idea, I'm sure."

Again Rowley said nothing, but just nodded his head. Beatrice, he thought, had opened it. She had been curious and had gone up deliberately to No. 4 to find out what she could.

"And so you see, Mr. Rowley, I couldn't help hearing what was going on. Really, you could have knocked me over with a feather—"

A pretty substantial feather, thought Rowley, would be needed. He listened, with an impassive, almost bovine face, to Beatrice's succinct account of the conversation she had overheard. When she had finished, she waited expectantly.

It was fully a couple of minutes before Rowley came out of his trance. Then he got up. "Thanks, Beatrice," he said. "Thanks a lot."

And with that he went straight out of the room. Beatrice felt somewhat deflated. She really did think, she said to herself, that Mr. Rowley might have said something.

When Rowley left the Stag his steps turned automatically in the direction of home, but after walking a few hundred yards, he pulled up short and retraced his steps.

His mind took things in slowly and his first astonishment over Beatrice's revelations was only now beginning to give way to a true appreciation of their significance. If her version of what she had overheard was correct, and he had no doubt that in substance it was so, then a situation had arisen which concerned every member of the Clode family closely.

The person most fitted to deal with this was clearly Rowley's Uncle Jeremy. As a solicitor, Jeremy Clode would know what use could be made of this surprising information, and exactly what steps to take.

Though Rowley would have liked to take action himself, he realized rather grudgingly that it would be far better to lay the matter before a shrewd and experienced lawyer. The sooner Jeremy was in possession of this information the better, and accordingly Rowley bent his footsteps straight to Jeremy's house in High Street.

The little maid who opened the door informed him that Mr. and Mrs. Clode were still at the dinner table. She would have shown him in there, but Rowley negatived this and said he would wait in Jeremy's study till they had finished.

On that particular Tuesday afternoon, Lynn Marchmont had gone for a long walk. Conscious of a growing restlessness and dissatisfaction with herself, she felt the need for thinking things out.

She had not seen Rowley for some days. After their somewhat stormy parting on the morning she had asked him to lend her five hundred pounds they had met as usual. Lynn realized that her demand had been unreasonable and that Rowley had been well within his rights in turning it down. Nevertheless reasonableness has never been a quality that appeals to lovers. Outwardly things were the same between her and Rowley, inwardly she was not so sure. The last few days she had found him unbearably monotonous, yet hardly liked to acknowledge to herself that David Hunter's sudden departure to London with his sister might have something to do with ished. He did not particularly want to include Frances in the colloquy. Indeed the fewer people who knew about it the better, until they should have determined on a definite course of action.

He wandered restlessly up and down Jeremy's study. On the flat-topped desk was a tin dispatch box labeled Sir William Jessamy Deceased. The shelves held a collection of legal tomes. There was an old photograph of Frances in evening dress and one of her father, Lord Edward Trenton, in riding kit. On the desk was the picture of a young man in uniform—Jeremy's son Antony, killed in the war.

Rowley winced and turned away. He sat down in a chair and stared at Lord Edward Trenton instead. In the dining room Frances said to her husband:

"I wonder what Rowley wants?" Jeremy said wearily:

"Probably fallen foul of some Government regulation. No farmer understands more than a quarter of these forms they have to fill up. Rowley's a conscientious fellow. He gets worried."

"He's nice," said Frances, "but terribly slow. I have a feeling, you know, that things aren't going too well between him and Lynn."

Jeremy murmured vacantly: "Lynn—oh yes, of course. Forgive me, I—I don't seem able to concentrate. The strain—"

Frances said swiftly: "Don't think about it. It's going to be all right, I tell you."

"You frighten me sometimes, Frances. You're so terribly reckless. You don't realize—"

"I realize everything. I'm not afraid. Really, you know, Jeremy, I'm rather enjoying myself—"

"That, my dear," said Jeremy, "is just what causes me such anxiety."

She smiled. "Come," she said. "You mustn't keep that buxom young man waiting too long. Go and help him to fill up Form eleven hundred and ninety-nine, or whatever it is."

But as they came out of the dining room the front door banged shut. Edna came to tell them that Mr. Rowley had said he wouldn't wait and that it was nothing that really mattered.

On that particular Tuesday afternoon, Lynn Marchmont had gone for a long walk. Conscious of a growing restlessness and dissatisfaction with herself, she felt the need for thinking things out.

She had not seen Rowley for some days. After their somewhat stormy parting on the morning she had asked him to lend her five hundred pounds they had met as usual. her temper was not improved by a meeting with Aunt Kathie outside the post office. Aunt Kathie was in good spirits.

"I think, Lynn dear, that we shall soon have good news."

"What on earth do you mean, Aunt Kathie?"

Mrs. Clode nodded and smiled and looked wise.

"I've had the most astonishing communications—really astonishing. A simple happy end to all our troubles. I had one setback, but since then I've got the message to try try try again. If at first you don't succeed, etc. . . . I'm not going to betray any secrets, Lynn dear, and the last thing I should want to do would be to raise false hopes prematurely, but I have the strongest belief that things will very soon be quite all right. And quite time too. I am really very worried about your uncle. He worked far too hard during the war. He really needs to retire and devote himself to his specialized studies—but of course he can't do that without an adequate income. And sometimes, he has such queer nervous fits. I am really very worried about him. He is really quite odd."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
Ethel Barrymore, actress; Albert Spalding, violinist; Edna Ferber, author, and Don Lush, track and field star, take bows on anniversaries today.

At two tables South played hastily on the spade 2 return, putting in the Q, so that the K covered by the A left East with the high J. Immediately one of those declarers realized his mistake and, sore at himself, promptly led a heart to the A, whereupon East scored the spade J and held him to exactly game.

The other South who made the bad play of the Q (in spade 2, went to work to repair the damage, keeping his wits about him. The next thing he did was lead the diamond Q from dummy, ready to finesse. East covered, the A scored, and the diamond 5 was led to the 10. Back to his own hand came this South with the club A and laid down the diamond J, hoping both defenders would follow suit. When they did, the spade 3 was discarded. That assured the same extra trick made by the players who played properly to the third trick. The bacon had been saved.

MOURNING THE DRAFT

THE APPEAL for observance of a day of "mourning and repentance" for the peace-time draft is signed by a group of eminent clergymen whose sincerity and high purpose are beyond question. Repentance is indeed appropriate; mourning would seem so only for those who believe that Peace is dead.

But mourning, repentance and protest will do little to correct the conditions which have forced this country to turn again to military conscription.

When a threat to the peace of the world has appeared it is too late to discuss the morality of arming to meet it. The argument that by arming itself the United States contributes to the possibilities of war cannot be supported by history, for this country did not enter either world war in a state which by the greatest stretch of the imagination could be called preparedness.

The church does far more in the service of the country, in the cause of peace and in its fight against conscription, by seeking out the sources of war—lack of understanding, distrust and blind self-interest among the nations—and diligently making what contribution it can to the elimination of those evils.

GOOD BUSINESS

PART of the credit for the large export-import business of Chicago should go to the up-and-coming world trade department of its Association of Commerce and Industry.

Correspondence amounting to a thousand letters a month from a hundred countries flows into this department. A large proportion is carried on in English, but a staff of foreign language experts is maintained to translate the rest. The amount of cash and merchandise involved in these transactions runs into millions.

Reptile skins, leopard skins, carved chests, textile machinery and chemicals, resins, shellacs, and various oils are a few of the commodities changing hands in deals which are sponsored by the Association.

Any organization which encourages the free flow of trade between countries is engaged in a constructive enterprise. It seems to be simpler, however, to come to an agreement over the exchange of goods and money to the profit of all concerned than it is to agree on the political maneuvers necessary for the achievement of peace. The practical minds which take care of the former are seldom brought to bear on the latter.

An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another fine morning and in the yard did stand asunder before a Crimston Glory rose planted last Spring. Blooming for the third time this Summer. Counted 17 buds in various stages of advancement and in the house had noted a half dozen gorgeous flowers taken from the same plant. Made a mental note to order more plants of the same variety for production next year.

Downtown did run into George Fitzpatrick and an argument, but he must have realized he was wrong as usual for he bought my coffee. Chatted with Earl Smith who is leaving Sunday for the Canadian fishing waters along with Doc Goldschmidt, Harold Hott, Wallace Crist and Ade Yates.

Noted that the Ralston Purina plant now has operated 711 days without a loss-time accident. Was present at the Safety meeting of the plant about a year ago when officials from St. Louis lauded the workers for going a year without serious mishap. And the locals promised to make it two years straight. Can't be done, was the opinion of the visitors. But is being done.

Passed the time of day with Glen Hay, who with his son, Jay, farms and raises chickens up Ashville way. Has several thousand hens and gathers eggs in a trailer. Is that bad at the present price of eggs? Wish I had a hen.

Came a communication from General Electric relative to business in 1948 and a statement that the company is well on toward a new record. Sold $773 million worth of products in six months. Prices averaged only 35 percent above 1940 while employees wages rose 75 percent and cost of materials purchased mounted close to double those of 1940. G. E. made a net profit of about seven cents out of each dollar taken in. And it paid the government $45 million in taxes. That $45 million might have constructed a lot of new factories, but instead it bought whatever it is that Washington buys with our tax dollars. We get something out of the dollars industry spends.

Bill Defenbaugh was in with a fine letter from his wife expressing appreciation for support of the 4-H Foundation Fund benefit square dance staged by the three Salt Creek clubs. Thankful to everyone. The dance permitted payment of $120 of the $212 Foundation goal set by the Salt Creek aggregation. And its success prompted plans for a repeat September 4 at the Fairgrounds. If the financial goal is passed the excess will be turned over to other 4-H clubs seeking to raise their allotments. The scrivener hopes that following the Salt Creek dance that other 4-H clubs will continue the dance series. They are good clean entertainment and could easily become a county institution. The Herald will continue supporting them gratis.

Here and there a little more talk along political lines. But so far have found none declaring intent to vote for anything or anyone. Everyone expects to vote against. And that is not a new idea. Generally the man in office is certain he is there because a majority of the voters wanted him personally. He is and has been there not so much because of the votes cast for him as because of the votes cast against his opponent.

These Days

During the whole period of the New Deal small business has been encouraged to believe that it has had the support of the Administration vis-a-vis big business. Whenever the opportunity offered, big business was slapped down in public, but there is no evidence that it was ever lessened in its power to compete with small business or even to absorb it. Actually the facts would substantiate the postulate that that branch of the New Deal which was socialistic favored the biggest businesses as concentrations which could, at the right time, be taken over most readily.

This is not a discussion of the relative merits of big or small business nor of the virtues of government policy that favors one position or another. It is a simple statement of fact that both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations have given the public to believe that they favored small business in preference to big.

Now comes the Federal Trade Commission, supported by the Supreme Court of the United States, and hits down some small businesses to the advantage of big business in the matter of the basing point. Maybe the supreme court had to decide this matter as it did, although Justice Burton thought otherwise, but it had been the Federal Trade Commission that labored for years to abolish the basing point and which gained its point.

So, it works out more favorably for the large companies that have more than one plant than for the small businesses that are limited to one plant. In a word, the Federal Trade Commission's efforts are anti-small business while intending perhaps to be anti-big business. They seek to increase competition, but does it?

I know of a firm situated in upper New York State which operates only one plant. It used to buy its steel in Buffalo at a price that included the cost of transportation from anywhere. Now it is required to buy steel in Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit plus the cost of transportation. Its price is becoming non-competitive, that is, their cost of steel plus transportation is higher than that of companies making the same product in Pennsylvania.

Another company, important in the war effort, has been planning to decentralize for reasons of security. It planned to put plants in Texas and Missouri. Because of the FTC decisions with regard to the basing point, the products of this company out of the Texas and Missouri plants would be non-competitive with its principal competitor, who has a plant in Chicago. Here the decision conflicts with the obvious need for decentralization on account of a prospective war.

How this helps small business or keeps prices down, it is difficult to see unless by small business the FTC means the incompetent, the inefficient, those needing subsidies or the presently non-existent businesses that will be brought into being on a fly-by-night basis to take advantage of a government-promoted confusion.

The New Drug Discoveries

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN medicine, as elsewhere, we have to take the good with the bad. Of recent years, chemical research has given us a number of new drugs whose life-saving qualities have been heralded everywhere, and rightly so, because they have proved invaluable. There are others, too, almost equally important in that they relieve distressing symptoms which can be controlled in no other way.

And yet, for all their potency against disease, there is not one of these drugs but which can cause dangerous reactions. This is one of the reasons why I have always stressed the importance of using them only under a physician's direction. Knowing what hazards are possible, he also knows how to spot them in their early stages and can thus stop the use of the drug in question before dangerous symptoms develop.

Caused by Penicillin

Reactions may be caused by penicillin, streptomycin, and the sulfonamide drugs, all of which are used for infections; benadryl used in cases of allergy or sensitivity; thiouracil, employed in the treatment of goiter, and tridione used to treat certain types of epilepsy. In the case of penicillin, reactions may include skin rash, hives, chills, fever, and vomiting. There may also be depression or excitation or convulsions, and the presence of blood in the urine. Reactions to penicillin sometimes may be decreased by giving benadryl or pyribenzamine.

In the case of streptomycin, ringing in the ears and dizziness may appear early in its use. After several weeks of treatment, the sense of balance controlled by the inner ear may be disturbed. If a skin rash occurs with streptomycin, it quickly disappears when the drug is stopped. The sulfonamide drugs can cause severe anemia, that is, lessening of the red cells or coloring of the blood, as well as a decrease in the number of white cells. Neuritis of the eye nerve or of other nerves may develop. There may be certain mental disturbances. Kidney damage is not unusual.

With benadryl, many patients experience drowsiness, nervousness, sickness at the stomach, and other unpleasant effects.

The most serious effect of thiouracil is a decrease in the white cells of the blood. This is a dangerous condition and every effort must be made to prevent it. Headache and diarrhea are other symptoms which may develop. For this reason, when thiouracil is used, examinations of the blood should be made weekly or oftener. A newer preparation of the same type, known as propyl-thiouracil, seems to be less likely to cause reactions. Tridione, also, may damage the blood-forming tissues.

When any of these various preparations are employed, the doctor must be ever-watchful to prevent and to control the so-called side-effects of these valuable drugs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L.: Can an inflamed colon be discovered without X-ray?

Answer: Inflammation of the colon can be diagnosed without an X-ray examination. Examination may be made with the proctoscope, an instrument made up of a tube and light which is passed into the lower bowel. It is very useful in diagnosing disorders of the large intestine.

Symptoms of bowel inflammation are quite distinct, such as pain in the abdomen, and the passage of bowel movement containing blood and mucus.

RECOVER FROM ERRORS

Everybody makes mistakes. That platitude fits the best bridge players the same as anybody else, make too many errors. But you will usually find one striking difference between the real star and the average pretty fair player. The top-players do not let themselves get upset by a slip, but gather themselves together and make a strenuous effort to recover from the loss threatened by the lapse. Lesser performers are prone to go into a panic, upon realizing a mistake, and so take the full loss from their tumble.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

BEATRICE paused for breath. Rowley said nothing, just listened. He never hurried people. If they liked to take their time it suited him.

She continued with dignity: "It was just a little later I had occasion to go up to No. 4 to see to the towels and the bed linen. That's next door to No. 5, and as it happens there's a communicating door—not that you'd know it from No. 5 because the big wardrobe stands right across it, so that you wouldn't know there was a door. Of course it's always kept shut but as it happened this time it was just a bit open—though who opened it I've no idea, I'm sure."

Again Rowley said nothing, but just nodded his head. Beatrice, he thought, had opened it. She had been curious and had gone up deliberately to No. 4 to find out what she could.

"And so you see, Mr. Rowley, I couldn't help hearing what was going on. Really, you could have knocked me over with a feather—I'm pretty substantial fellow, thought Rowley, would be needed.

He listened, with an impassive, almost bovine face, to Beatrice's succinct account of the conversation she had overheard. When she had finished, she waited expectantly.

It was fully a couple of minutes before Rowley came out of his trance. Then he got up. "Thanks, Beatrice," he said. "Thanks a lot."

And with that he went straight out of the room. Beatrice felt somewhat deflated. She really did think, she said to herself, that Mr. Rowley might have said something.

When Rowley left the Stag his steps turned automatically in the direction of home, but after walking a few hundred yards, he pulled up short and retraced his steps.

His mind took things in slowly and his first astonishment over Beatrice's revelations was only now beginning to give way to a true appreciation of their significance. If her version of what she had overheard was correct, and he had no doubt that in substance it was so, then a situation had arisen which concerned every member of the Claude family closely. The person most fitted to deal with this was clearly Rowley's Uncle Jeremy. As a solicitor, Jeremy Claude would know what use could best be made of this surprising information, and exactly what steps to take.

Though Rowley would have liked to take action himself, he realized rather grudgingly that it would be far better to lay the matter before a shrewd and experienced lawyer. The sooner Jeremy was in possession of this information the better, and accordingly Rowley bent his footsteps straight to Jeremy's house in High Street.

The little maid who opened the door informed him that Mr. and Mrs. Claude were still at the dinner table. She would have shown him in there, but Rowley negatived this and said he would wait in Jeremy's study till they had finished.

ished. He did not particularly want to include Frances in the colloquy. Indeed the fewer people who knew about it the better, until they should have determined on a definite course of action.

He wandered restlessly up and down Jeremy's study. On the flat-topped desk was a tin dispatch box labeled Sir William Jessamy Deceased. The shelves held a collection of legal tomes. There was an old photograph of Frances in evening dress and one of her father, Lord Edward, Trenton, in riding kit. On the desk was a picture of a young man in uniform—Jeremy's son Antony, killed in the war.

Rowley winced and turned away. He sat down in a chair and stared at Lord Edward Trenton instead. In the dining room Frances said to her husband:

"I wonder what Rowley wants?"

Jeremy said wearily: "Probably fallen foul of some Government regulation. No farmer understands more than I do the forms they have to fill up. Rowley's a conscientious fellow. He gets worried."

"He's nice," said Frances, "but terribly slow. I have a feeling, you know, that things aren't going too well between him and Lynn."

Jeremy murmured vacantly: "Lynn—oh yes, of course. Forgive me, I—I don't seem able to concentrate. The strain—"

Frances said swiftly: "Don't think about it. It's going to be all right, I tell you."

"You frighten me sometimes, Frances. You're so terribly reckless. You don't realize—"

"I realize everything. I'm not afraid. Really, you know, Jeremy, I'm rather enjoying myself—"

"That, my dear," said Jeremy, "is just what causes me such anxiety."

She smiled. "Come," she said. "You mustn't keep that buxom young man waiting too long. Go and help him to fill up Form eleven hundred and ninety-nine, or whatever it is."

But as they came out of the dining room the front door banged shut. Edna came to tell them that Mr. Rowley had said he wouldn't wait and that it was nothing that really mattered.

On that particular Tuesday afternoon, Lynn Marchmont had gone for a long walk. Conscious of a growing restlessness and dissatisfaction with herself, she felt the need for thinking things out. She had not seen Rowley for some days. After their somewhat stormy parting on the morning she had asked him to lend her five hundred pounds they had met as usual. Lynn realized that her demand had been unreasonable and that Rowley had been well within his rights in turning it down. Nevertheless reasonableness has never been a quality that appeals to Lynn. Outwardly things were the same between her and Rowley, inwardly she was not so sure. The last few days she had found unbearably monotonous, yet hardly liked to acknowledge to herself that David Hunter's sudden departure to London with his sister might have something to do with their monotony. David, she admitted ruefully, was an exciting person.

As for her relations, at the moment she found them all unbearably trying. Her mother was in the best of spirits and had annoyed Lynn at lunch that day by announcing that she was going to try and find a second gardener. "Old Tom really can't keep up with things here."

"But, darling, we can't afford it," Lynn had exclaimed.

"Nonsense, I really think, Lynn, that Gordon would be terribly upset if he could see how the garden has gone down. He was so particularly always about the border, and the grass being kept mown, and the paths in good order—and just look at it now. I feel Gordon would want it put in order again."

"Even if we have to borrow money from his widow to do it," Lynn said.

"I told you, Lynn, Rosaleen couldn't have been nicer about it. I really think she quite saw my point of view. I have a nice balance at the bank after paying all the bills. And I really think a second gardener would be an economy. Think of the extra vegetables we could grow."

"We could buy a lot of extra vegetables for a good deal less than another three pounds a week."

"I think we could get someone for less than that, dear. There are men coming out of the Services now who want jobs. The paper says so."

Lynn said dryly: "I doubt if you'll find them in Wansley Vale—or in Wansley Heath."

But although the matter was left like that, the tendency of her mother to count on Rosaleen as a regular source of support haunted Lynn. It revived the memory of David's sneering words.

So, feeling disgruntled and out of temper, she set out to walk her black mood off.

Her temper was not improved by a meeting with Aunt Kathie outside the post office. Aunt Kathie was in good spirits.

"I think, Lynn dear, that we shall soon have good news."

"What on earth do you mean, Aunt Kathie?"

Mrs. Claude nodded and smiled and looked wise.

"I've had the most astonishing communications—really astonishing. A simple happy end to all our troubles. I had one setback, but since then I've got the message to try try try again. If at first you don't succeed etc. . . I'm not going to betray any secrets, Lynn dear, and the last thing I should want to do would be to raise false hopes prematurely, but I have the strongest belief that things will very soon be quite all right. And quite time too. I am really very worried about your uncle. He worked far too hard during the war. He really needs to retire and devote himself to his specialized studies—but of course he can't do that without an adequate income. And sometimes, he has such queer nervous fits, I am really very worried about him. He is really quite odd."

Canning Time Here Now, Say Top Homemakers

Now is the time to can or otherwise preserve produce of the home garden or fruits and vegetables purchased from the grocer.

Circleville Pumpkin Show is not too far away, when rows and rows of hand canned foods are displayed. Each woman in Pickaway County covets a blue ribbon, so now is the time to make ready.

With the gardens at their peak now with fine flavor, firm textures and bright colors being available, along with help from the weatherman for cooler working mornings, homemakers are taking advantage of the peak of perfection season.

New cook books are simple to use with directions to bring out the true flavors. They suggest handling fruit and vegetables gently but work quickly and always use the best there is to be offered.

Home-canned or frozen foods are sure to be appreciated at any table and add glamour to family meals.

Household Hints

It is advisable to turn off radios during an electrical storm because the line surges occurring during the storm might damage the set.

Give your new linoleum a coat of wax and daily care with a dry mop. Don't scrub it to death with soapy water.

If you have to scale your own fish, first rub vinegar all over the fish and the job will be much easier.

A beef pot roast that has been pressure-cooked can be given that brown "roast" look if it is seared under the flame in the broiler before serving.

A cutlery rack is useful and safe. It can be hung on the wall to protect your knives as well as your fingers.

MONTH'S TELEPHONE SERVICE

FOR THE PRICE OF A DINNER

Perhaps you have never thought much about it, but the average monthly telephone bill hardly amounts to the cost of a good dinner.

When you think of telephone rates, do you pause to reflect on what you get for your money—just how much your telephone is worth to you?

What is it worth as your sentinel of safety, whether it be to call the fire department, summon a doctor, or to meet some other emergency.

What is it worth as a cheerful servant, never complaining, never faltering, always making easier your routine tasks of buying, selling, ordering, hearing, telling, asking.

What is it worth in the thousands of steps and countless moments it saves you every day?

Leaders Can't Stand Prosperity

A's Dethroned; Braves Totter

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—The pennant contenders in both major league races are like a horse player who has just hit his first three-horse win parlay—they can't stand prosperity.

So today we find the Philadelphia Athletics relinquishing first place in the American League to Cleveland after perching on the top rung for just one day, and the pace-setting Boston Braves suffering another attack of jitters in the National League scramble.

The A's Lou Brissie, gallant war veteran, had the New York Yankees handcuffed 5 to 0 going into the eighth inning in Yankee Stadium last night when the New Yorkers suddenly came to life with an eight-run rally to win 8 to 5 and snap their four-game losing streak.

Four hits, five walks and an error accounted for the eight rallies before the first out.

Grandpa Satchmo Paige, the ageless Negro star, once again paid off for the Indians when he held the Chicago White Sox to five hits and blanked them 5 to 0.

But, Ol' Satch is a mite disappointed today.

YOU SEE, a turnaway crowd of 51,013 fans went out to watch Satch last night in Chicago's Comiskey park, and the ol' boy let 'em down.

It wasn't that he flung the Indians back into the American League lead that disappointed Paige, but the fact that he went hitless in four trips to the plate.

Now Satch admittedly is a brilliant hitter ("never hit less than 300 in my life") and such a turn of events obviously was a hard and cruel blow.

But as for the rest of the Indians today, all was joy and happiness, and the players once again have that $7,000 pennant glint in their eyes.

Mel Parnell of the Red Sox held the Washington Senators to four hits and beat them 6 to 2, the Sox advancing to within one game of the second-place Athletics.

Washington dropped to seventh place below the St. Louis Browns, who knocked Prince Hal Newhouser out of the box and trounced Detroit 4 to 1. Ned Garver, St. Louis rookie, held Detroit to six hits.

Brooklyn blasted Boston 6 to 3, squaring the series and advancing to within three games of the pace-setting Braves again.

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals fell back when they were nosed out by Pittsburgh again, 5 to 4. Stan Musial walloped two doubles, a triple and a single, but six singles in the eighth gave the Pirates four runs and the ball game.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh straight win over the Cards.

The Phillies knocked the New York Giants dizzy with 10 runs in the first inning and went on to win 12 to 7.

Johnny Schmitz of the Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati, 10 to 4.

Own World's Record Smashed By Dr. Stanton

WESTBURY, N. Y., Aug. 14—Dr. Stanton, Canada's whirlwind pacer, is laying claim today to the distinction of being the mightiest trotter of the past decade.

The speedy Canadian smashed his own world's record in winning the $10,000 final heat of the Benjamin W. Downing Memorial Race at Roosevelt Raceway last night.

He paced the one and one half miles by two lengths. It was Dr. miles 3:11.6, defeating Forbes Stanton's second world's record at the distance in a week.

Last Friday night he won an elimination heat in 3:13.2.

Forbes Chief, in finishing second in 3:12.2, also clipped the former world's record.

Ohio Tennis Meet Opening

MIDDLETOWN, Aug. 14—The Ohio state tennis tourney opens here today with men titlists from five cities and women holders of eight city crowns playing the featured roles.

Dick McFarlane, Canton's winner of the last state tourney at Columbus in the prewar days of 1941, is top-seeded among the men. He holds the Canton city and Northeastern Ohio titles.

Other city champs are Paul Sayers of Detroit, Jack Sunderland of Indianapolis, Chet Legg of Middletown, and Herb Piker of Hamilton.

PROMOTED FROM THEIR FARM club at Newark, N. J., by the New York Yankees to a position as a starting hurler for the Bronx Bombers, Bob Porterfield (left) talks things over in Cleveland stadium with Yankee Catcher "Yogi" Berra. Porterfield has been the ace pitcher for the Newark Bears in the International league, winning 15 this season, is leading hurler in minors. (International)

SEYMOUR TO BE COACH

Junior Olympic Team Sets Plan For Nationals

Paul (Snow) Seymour of Circleville was elected as head coach of the 25-boy Pickaway County entry into the National Junior Olympics Friday night.

The tow-headed former Circleville high school crack miller was voted into the berth at a meeting of the Pickaway County Junior Olympics team members and their parents at an uptown restaurant.

Joe Varney, sports booster for Williamsport, was named as assistant mentor at the meeting.

The Friday night meeting was held primarily to give the parents of the Pickaway County team a clear picture of the background of the national meet which their sons are to enter, and to detail the program for the national event.

John Heiskell, spokesman for the county Olympics committee, told the boys and their parents Friday night that the team would leave Circleville early in the morning of Aug. 27 by private autos.

HEISKELL continued that the team would reach the stadium of the Baldwin and Wallace college near Cleveland in the afternoon and would warm up for the events facing them the following day.

All runoffs in the Nationals are to be completed the following day, the traditional "parade of champions" scheduled early in the morning, followed by the tradition of lighting the Olympic torch.

Following the runoffs, local lads will be given an extensive entertainment program in the evening and again bedded down in the college dormitories.

All the local aspirants will be given the chance to attend the church of their faith Sunday morning.

Following the explanation of details concerning the trip, Heiskell explained the financial setup through which the youngsters are to make the journey.

Leaders Can't Stand Prosperity

A's Dethroned; Braves Totter

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—The pennant contenders in both major league races are like a horse player who has just hit his first three-horse win parlay—they can't stand prosperity.

So today we find the Philadelphia Athletics relinquishing first place in the American League to Cleveland after perching on the top rung for just one day, and the pace-setting Boston Braves suffering another attack of jitters in the National League scramble.

The A's Lou Brissie, gallant veteran, had the New York Yankees handcuffed 5 to 0 going into the eighth inning in Yankee Stadium last night when the New Yorkers suddenly came to life with an eight-run rally to win 8 to 5 and snap their four-game losing streak.

Four hits, five walks and an error accounted for the eight rallies before the first out.

Grandpa Satchmo Paige, the ageless Negro star, once again paid off for the Indians when he held the Chicago White Sox to five hits and blanked them 5 to 0.

But, Ol' Satch is a mite disappointed today.

YOU SEE, a runaway crowd of 51,013 fans went out to watch Satch last night in Chicago's Comiskey park, and the ol' boy let 'em down.

It wasn't that he flung the Indians back into the American League lead that disappointed Paige, but the fact that he went hitless in four trips to the plate.

Now Satch admittedly is a brilliant hitter ("never hit less than 300 in my life.") and such a turn of events obviously was a hard and cruel blow.

But as for the rest of the Indians today, all was joy and happiness, and the players once again have that $7,000 pennant glint in their eyes.

Mel Parnell of the Red Sox held the Washington Senators to four hits and beat them 6 to 2, the Sox advancing to within one game of the second-place Athletics.

Washington dropped to seventh place below the St. Louis Browns, who knocked Prince Hal Newhouser out of the box and trounced Detroit 4 to 1. Ned Garver, St. Louis rookie, held Detroit to six hits.

Brooklyn blasted Boston 6 to 3, squaring the series and advancing to within three games of the pace-setting Braves again.

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals fell back when they were nosed out by Pittsburgh again, 5 to 4. Stan Musial walloped two doubles, a triple and a single, but six singles in the eighth gave the Pirates four runs and the ball game.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh straight win over the Cards.

The Phillies knocked the New York Giants dizzy with 10 runs in the first inning and went on to win 12 to 7.

Johnny Schmitz of the Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati, 10 to 4.

Own World's Record Smashed By Dr. Stanton

WESTBURY, N. Y., Aug. 14—Dr. Stanton, Canada's whirlwind pacer, is laying claim today to the distinction of being the mightiest trotter of the past decade.

The speedy Canadian smashed his own world's record in winning the $10,000 final heat of the Benjamin W. Downing Memorial Race at Roosevelt Raceway last night.

He paced the one and one half Chief by two lengths. It was Dr. miles 3:11.6, defeating Forbes Stanton's second world's record at the distance in a week.

Last Friday night he won an elimination heat in 3:13.2.

Forbes Chief, in finishing second in 3:12.2, also clipped the former world's record.

Other city champs are Paul Sayers of Detroit, Jack Sunderland of Indianapolis, Chet Legg of Middletown, and Herb Piker of Hamilton.

Unemployment Pay Disallowed In Slowdowns, Lockouts

Local BUC Boss Details State Stand

Ruling Reached On Split Vote

One of three members of the board of review of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation this week found firm but futile grounds for dispute in a ruling involving plant slowdowns and lockouts.

C. C. Thomas, manager of the local BUC office, said the split in board votes came in a case review submitted by an Ohio firm regarding an alleged voluntary employee slowdown arising from a change in bonus plans.

The unnamed Ohio firm at first paid bonuses to workers on individual production. The slowdown resulted when the plant changed the bonus plan to a departmental basis causing a reduction in wages even with higher production, the workers declared.

Forthwith, company officials began dismissing workers on the grounds that the obvious slowdown in production caused shortages in some departments and bottlenecks in others.

WITH THE partial shutdown of the plant, officials told workers that were laid off they would return to their jobs only when they were willing to perform a full day's work.

A statement also was sent to the workers' union declaring that work would be resumed only if the union would issue a bulletin stating it did not approve of the slowdown. The union refused, it was disclosed.

According to the Ohio Law, a claimant for benefits is denied compensation when he has "lost his employment or has left his employment by reason of a labor dispute (other than a lock-out) at the factory, or place of employment, as long as the labor dispute continues."

The dissenting board member said the company's action in this case was a lockout by reason of the company's refusal to furnish work until the workers and their union had complied with employer demands.

However, other board members accepted the precedence of another case defining strikes.

In that case, a strike was defined as "a concerted refusal by employees to do any work for their employer or to work at their customary rate of speed until the object of the strike is obtained."

While BUC rules do not contain the word "strike" but rather "labor dispute," it was construed to hold the same meaning and thus the same results should be applied by reason of its "ordinary, accepted meaning and definition."

Thus, in a 2-1 vote, those men laid off because of the slowdown were disallowed payments because their actions in the slowdown were deemed a labor dispute and BUC does not pay benefits for labor lost in strikes or labor disputes.

Youth Saves Girl From Drowning

LIMA, Aug. 14—Quick action by 14-year-old William Kennedy saved the life of a nine-year-old Lima girl late Thursday, but he was too late to save the little boy who was playing with her.

Wendell Bowden, seven, was drowned in Schoonover boating lake at Lima when he and his playmate, Elizabeth Burkholder, fell from the dock.

Kennedy's quick eyes spotted the pair in distress and he swam from a nearby island to help the girl to shore in a matter of seconds.

He recovered Bowden's body within three minutes after the children fell from the dock, but all efforts to revive the boy were futile.

YOUNG VICTOR EMMANUEL, playing here with a toy boat in Geneva, Switzerland, might some day have ruled Italy as king if it were not for several big "IFs"—if there had been no World War II, if his late grandfather, King Victor Emmanuel, had not abdicated and if the nation, by vote, had not dissolved the House of Savoy, depriving Victor's dad, King Humbert, of crown. Fightin' Mayor Of Pomeroy Defies Council

COLUMBUS, Aug. 14 — Balding, broken-nosed Delmar A. Canaday has answered back to the four village councilmen who asked Governor Herbert to remove him from his position as mayor of Pomeroy.

Canaday, a former prize-fighter, came to Columbus last night on business, where he told news-

"I have an obligation to the people. I intend to serve out my two years—if I'm not elected to Congress—if I have to fight my way up and down the stairs of my office. And if anybody gets in my way, he is going to get hurt."

The governor said he had not received the councilmen's letter charging the Democratic congressional nominee from the 10th district with "malfeasance, non-feasance and misfeasance" in office and a battery of other offenses.

The mayor, who fought over 200 fights as "Kayo the Kid Canaday" and was 1922-23 welterweight champion of West Virginia, denied the charges.

The only Democratic officeholder in Meigs County said: "They insulted me in council meetings, and I killed them with kindness. But I did tell them that if a single guy swung on me, I would lower the boom on him."

Tobin Sworn In; Pledges Fight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 — Maurice J. Tobin was sworn in as secretary of labor yesterday. He pledged himself to repair the "damage done by the 80th Congress," he said.

"The damage that was done by Congress can and must be repaired if the department is to carry out its full duties and responsibilities to the wage earners and all the people."

"That is the task to which we must dedicate ourselves. It offers not only the opportunity to meet a vital need, but will be a challenge to our best efforts."

Williamsporters Discover 'Body' In River Bed

A portion of a mystery, which might appropriately be entitled "Where Did They Hide The Body", was solved recently by a group of Williamsport youngsters. The youngsters found the "body" beneath the Deercreek bridge on Route 22 near Williamsport.

The "body" found was that of a 1936 model motorcycle, stripped of motor, battery, transmission and gas tanks. It had been stolen from the residence of Ed Congrove, three miles south of Circleville on Route 23, July 22.

Circleville police explained Saturday the motorcycle, owned by Merle G. Jenkins of Portsmouth, had been left on the Pickaway County farm July 4 when the generator failed.

They received a report on Aug. 1 that the motorcycle had been stolen.

Williamsport youngsters who discovered the wheel told Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Verne Pontius they had found the gas tanks in Deercreek and later had spied the handlebars sticking up in the water under the bridge.

THEY SAID THEY rounded up a gang to drag the heavy wheel from the stream, then called the sheriff's office.

Although full details of the theft were not known, it was believed the motorcycle was taken from the Congrove place in a truck. The motorcycle was presumably dismantled and thrown from the bridge.

Police Chief William F. McCrady and Officer Turney Ross brought the "body" to Circleville Friday afternoon.

DAV Brass Loses; To Sing Of Roses

COLUMBUS, Aug. 14 — The dignified commander of the California department of Disabled Veterans stood at the corner of Broad and High streets in the center of Columbus yesterday and he sang loud and long.

The burden of the refrain for San Francisco's John Shannon was "My Wild Irish Rose."

It seems Shannon made a bet with Ohio DAV Commander Albert L. Croy of Ohio City that California would have a higher DAV membership than the Buckeye state by the end of June.

California hit 12,161; Ohio, 16,301.

cancellations in July. He said 193 were made in June.

During last month, 43 new cars and 10 new trucks were delivered. In June, 37 new cars and 14 new trucks were delivered.

Meat 'Strike' Effect Doubtful

SALEM, Aug. 14 — Salem housewives kept up their campaign against high meat prices today despite claims that the drive is forcing prices even higher.

A wholesale meat distributor said farmers are reacting to the housewives telephone campaign by holding back marketable cattle. This, in turn, the spokesman added, is pushing prices higher.

Guy Whinnery, Columbiana County's largest livestock producer, countered that "if there is any decline at all in the amount of cattle marketed in the area, it is due purely to a shortage."

Car Title Hike Is Noted Here

Automobile titles issued during July by A. L. Wilder, Pickaway County clerk of courts, increased by 25 over the previous month of June.

Last month 538 titles were issued compared with 513 in June, Wilder said. However, the clerk reported a decrease in lien notations made in his office.

In July, 233 notations were recorded compared to 252 in the previous month. The clerk of courts office also made 206 lien

New Electric Power Rate Hike Is Due Monday

A new 4.4 percent rate increase is to be levied on Circleville power consumers Monday by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Charles Gilmore, division manager of the Circleville branch of the power company, said all electric bills payable Sept. 10 would carry the new increase.

Although Circleville governmental officials have voiced no opposition to the new rate increase, Columbus lawmakers are vociferously denouncing the hike as a "subterfuge to get themselves in better position" when their present five-year electric contract is to be renegotiated next year.

The Columbus lawmakers announced Thursday they would seek an injunction to halt the Neglect Charged In Divorce Writ

Accused of gross neglect of duty, John E. Thomas is being sued for divorce in Pickaway County common pleas court by Phyllis Jean Thomas.

In her petition which claims they were married April 16, 1944, in Circleville, it was stated the couple has two children, ages three and one.

The petition claims Thomas spent most of his earnings on intoxicants and became drunk two or three times a week. As a result, Mrs. Thomas is asking the court grant her alimony, support and custody of the children, and a restraining order against her husband pending the outcome of the proceedings.

4.4 percent rate increase if the company doesn't withdraw its demand before the deadline.

The new rate hike is to be effective in 66 other Ohio communities at midnight Monday.

Cops Patient, Grab Gamblers

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 14—Patience pays off, Youngstown police attested today.

The police racket squad made a 41-man haul on the East End Recreation Club yesterday and seized dice, cash, playing cards and two fifths of liquor.

The club was shielded by a heavy door, always kept locked. Fearing that forcing the door would chase any evidence there might be into hiding, police awaited their opportunity.

Finally a cheerful customer opened the door to leave and the police swept in.

2 More Firms On CofC List

Two more Circleville business firms have jumped on the new membership bandwagon of the local Chamber of Commerce.

John Magill, chairman in charge of the campaign which is to end Sept. 1, said Saturday that Beaver Studio and the Harden-Stevenson Co. have been added to the growing list of new, active members.

The drive has now topped the 100-member mark. Magill said his committee was confident the goal of 150 active members would be reached before the drive end deadline.

Hurry Blamed For Man's Death

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 14—Plain City Marshal John Minshall said today that William Gibson, 21, died because he was in a little too much of a hurry.

Gibson was killed late yesterday when an eastbound Pennsylvania freight train struck his 18-year-old car at a crossing in Plain City.

Minshall said Gibson had waited for a westbound train to pass, then drove onto the tracks in the path of the second string of cars.

Unemployment Pay Disallowed In Slowdowns, Lockouts

Local BUC Boss Details State Stand

Ruling Reached On Split Vote

One of three members of the board of review of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation this week found firm but futile grounds for dispute in a ruling involving plant slowdowns and lockouts.

C. C. Thomas, manager of the local BUC office, said the split in board votes came in a case review submitted by an Ohio firm regarding an alleged voluntary employee slowdown arising from a change in bonus plans.

The unnamed Ohio firm at first paid bonuses to workers on individual production. The slowdown resulted when the plant changed the bonus plan to a departmental basis causing a reduction in wages even with higher production, the workers declared.

Forthwith, company officials began dismissing workers on the grounds that the obvious slowdown in production caused shortages in some departments and bottlenecks in others.

WITH THE partial shutdown of the plant, officials told workers that were laid off they would return to their jobs only when they were willing to perform a full day's work.

A statement also was sent to the workers' union declaring that work would be resumed only if the union would issue a bulletin stating it did not approve of the slowdown. The union refused, it was disclosed.

According to the Ohio Law, a claimant for benefits is denied compensation when he has "lost his employment or has left his employment by reason of a labor dispute (other than a lockout) at the factory, or place of employment, as long as the labor dispute continues."

The dissenting board member said the company's action in this case was a lockout by reason of the company's refusal to furnish work until the workers and their union had complied with employer demands.

However, other board members accepted the precedence of another case defining strikes.

In that case, a strike was defined as "a concerted refusal by employees to do any work for their employer or to work at their customary rate of speed until the object of the strike is obtained."

While BUC rules do not contain the word "strike" but rather "labor dispute," it was construed to hold the same meaning and thus the same results should be applied by reason of its "ordinary, accepted meaning and definition."

Thus, in a 2-1 vote, those men laid off because of the slowdown were disallowed payments because their actions in the slowdown were deemed a labor dispute and BUC does not pay benefits for labor lost in strikes or labor disputes.

Youth Saves Girl From Drowning

LIMA, Aug. 14—Quick action by 14-year-old William Kennedy saved the life of a nine-year-old Lima girl late Thursday, but he was too late to save the little boy who was playing with her.

Wendell Bowden, seven, was drowned in Schoonover boating lake at Lima when he and his playmate, Elizabeth Burkholder, fell from the dock.

Kennedy's quick eyes spotted the pair in distress and he swam from a nearby island to help the girl to shore in a matter of seconds.

He recovered Bowden's body within three minutes after the children fell from the dock, but all efforts to revive the boy were futile.

YOUNG VICTOR EMMANUEL, playing here with a toy boat in Geneva, Switzerland, might some day have ruled Italy as king if it were not for several big "ifs"—if there had been no World War II, if his late grandfather, King Victor Emmanuel, had not abdicated and if the nation, by vote, had not dissolved the House of Savoy, depriving Victor's dad, King Humbert, of crown. Fightin' Mayor Of Pomeroy Defies Council

COLUMBUS, Aug. 14—Balding, broken-nosed Delmar A. Canaday has answered back to the four village councilmen who asked Governor Herbert to remove him from his position as mayor of Pomeroy.

Canaday, a former prize-fighter, came to Columbus last night on business, where he told newsmen:

"I have an obligation to the people. I intend to serve out my two years—if I'm not elected to Congress—if I have to fight my way up and down the stairs of my office. And if anybody gets in my way, he is going to get hurt."

The governor said he had not received the councilmen's letter charging the Democratic congressional nominee from the 10th district with "malfeasance, non-feasance and misfeasance" in office and a battery of other offenses.

The mayor, who fought over 200 fights as "Kayo the Kid Canaday" and was 1922-23 welterweight champion of West Virginia, denied the charges.

The only Democratic officeholder in Meigs County said:

"They insulted me in council meetings, and I killed them with kindness. But I did tell them that if a single guy swung on him, I would lower the boom on him."

Tobin Sworn In; Pledges Fight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—Maurice J. Tobin was sworn in as secretary of labor yesterday. He pledged himself to repair the "damage done by the 80th Congress."

"The damage that was done by Congress can and must be repaired if the department is to carry out its full duties and responsibilities to the wage earners and all the people."

"That is the task to which we must dedicate ourselves. It offers not only the opportunity to meet a vital need, but will be a challenge to our best efforts."

In the last week of July, Pickaway County sales tax receipts zoomed more than $2,000 above the total collected in the previous week, the weekly Ohio state tax report reveals.

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright said, Pickaway County receipts for the week ending July 31, totalled $5,494.77. Receipts for the previous week amounted to $3,412.08, an increase of $2,082.69.

Comparing receipts of the last week of July with the corresponding period of last year, Ebright said there still was a marked increase of sales in the current year.

For the same week of last year, total receipts were $4,091.94—or $1,402.83 less than this year, the treasurer reported.

Total collections for this year amount to $127,329.31, compared with a total of $107,482.49 at the same time in 1947.
